

Anthony D. Slonim, MD, DrPH

Dr. Slonim is an innovator and proven leader in healthcare on both the regional and national levels. He is a quadruple board-certified physician and has a Doctorate of Public Health.

Under his leadership, Renown Health has welcomed numerous community partnerships and strategic collaborations. Most recently, Renown collaborated with the Desert Research Institute, governor's office and personal genetics company, 23andMe, to pioneer one of the world's leading community-based genetic health studies aimed at improving population health. Dr. Slonim also led affiliations with Stanford Medicine; the University of Nevada, Reno School of Medicine; and St. George's University, Grenada to expand specialty and subspecialty care available to northern Nevadans and bring more care providers to the Silver State.

Dr. Slonim serves as the Editor-in-Chief for the Physician Leadership Journal and chairs the Truckee Meadows Healthy Communities and Certified Medical Representatives Institute boards.